munication with the left column; the right, under the command of Lieuteauxi General Kevalevsky, commenced its movement from Karachh on the Sto of June, and was to join the main body of the array as seen as it had made an attempt to take Ardights.

The general rends wins for all the troops was the village of Zaim, eitnated on the river Kara-Tebai, distant one stations from Kars.

On June 9, the two first colomic united at Agdja-Kais, and wast of there for Lieuteaum General Kovaisovsky's detachment. Our varguers pushed on to Zaim, and the moothe detachment of Major General Eskianof was seat in the direction of Ardinguan. Some picke's of the enemy, someisting of hash basouks, supported by some waste rom Kars.

Daring the mysement in advance on the part of the principal forces, Lieutenant General Kovaisovsky, who had in three marches reached the lamber of Ofchek, herned there that the Peahs charged with the defence of the centry was at Ardaghan, where Asian Poshs, chief of the Skadjak of Tchaldyr, was collecting his militia (8,00 strong). At the same time, Lieutenant General Kovaisovsky was informed by his agies that the interior of the fortress was quite unprotected, and rendered it pessible for him, by fring grape from batteries planted on the right bank of the Kouta, to compel the sarrison to evacuate it.

This information induced Lieut Gen. Kovalesky to go to Ardighan. During the march our troops may the decise of the town, who made their submission, presented the keys of the fortress, and announced that the habe of the town, who made their submission, presented the keys of the fortress and announced that the habe of the town who made their submission, presented the keys of the fortress, and announced that the heads of the town, who made their submission, presented the hays of the fortress and announced that the heads of the town, who made their submission, presented the hays of the fortress and announced that the heads of the town when their milities, to the Great diseas.

On June 11, Lieut, Gen. Kovalevsky compled the for treas, the walls and batteries of which he blew up, and swiarzed on the 12th to Olicheck, where he joined the detachment of Major General Bahlasoff, who had arrived there. On the 12th the right column was to proceed to Zaim, which the main body of our troops had already passed through.

At the same time, is order to reconssitre the ground towards Kars, a small detachment had been seat on the 2d of June, under Major General Count Nyrod, and consisting of four setoles of the line, and of four squadrens of lancars from the combined brigade of drageons, with four pieces of Cossacks of the line, and of four squadrens of lancars from the combined brigade of drageons, with four pieces of Cossacks of the line, and of four squadrens of lancars from the combined brigade of drageons, with four pieces of Cossacks of the line, and of four squadrens.

Simultaneously with this report A. D. C. General Menravieff sends us an account of the reconnaissance made between May 29 and Jane 2 by the Gouriel detachment in the Sandjak of Keboulst. There our brave trees and multia, led on by Major General Prince Bagnation Monkhransky, this of the Gouriel detachment, after surmounting the extraordinary difficulties of the ground, compelled the Turas to evacuate an entrenthed camp near Legva and Orchhomour, and to tate refinge in a strong position on the other side of the river Kinhrish, under the guns of the inaccessible fortress of Tablabedity.

On this eccasion some side detachments, composed of ear militiamen, forcet their way up to the past of St. Richeles, in front of which they burned the enemy the village of Goura, taken by storm, was also given up to the flames. The Turks retreated on all paints.
